The University of Applied Sciences for Industry, CAMPUS 02 University of Applied Sciences in Graz, provides academic competence in five fields of study that have a significant influence on the successful economic and technical development of companies.

The team behind the automation technology department make considerable contributions to the success of the university of applied sciences with their competent teaching and supervision of application-oriented research and development projects.

Full-time Lecturer for Automation Technology

40 hours full-time

Your tasks

- Teaching with a focus on control technology, primarily in the English language full-time Bachelor’s in Smart Automation
- Build-up and management of the English language full-time Bachelor’s in Smart Automation
- Design, acquisition and fulfilment of R&D projects
- Design, acquisition and accompaniment of project work, Bachelor’s and Master’s theses
- External representation of the department and support for the heads of degree programme dealing with internal and external stakeholders
- Support for the further development and educational content of the department
- Publication activity and lectures at expert symposia and conferences

Your profile

- Graduate with diploma or master (technical university, university of applied sciences), preferably in the field of automation technology, mechatronics, control technology; PhD desirable
- Many years of relevant professional experience within and/or outside the higher education sector
- Excellent communication skills
- Teaching experience, ideally in the higher education sector
- Conceptual and analytical thinking together with autonomous and goal-oriented style of working
- Sense of responsibility, performance and practical orientation, entrepreneurial thinking and acting
- Ability to work in a team, project management experience
- Willingness to travel, very good knowledge of the English language, both oral and written

The monthly wage lies in the range of € 4,000 to € 5,000 before tax, according to qualifications and experience.

Please forward your written application with CV and professional recommendations by 31 October 2020 to:

CAMPUS 02 - Fachhochschule der Wirtschaft GmbH HRM, for the attention of Ms Dagmar Baumgartner jobs@campus02.at / www.en.campus02.at/jobs

Data protection information:

https://en.campus02.at/privacy-statement-job-applicants/