Full-time Lecturer for Informatics Automation Technology Department

40 h / Week

YOUR TASKS
- Teaching in the field of informatics in English language in the full-time Bachelor’s degree programme Smart Automation
- Design, acquisition, support and supervision of student projects, Bachelor’s and Master’s theses
- Contribution to the further development of the teaching content and didactic concepts of the department
- Representing the department externally and supporting the department management in dealing with internal and external stakeholders
- Design, acquisition and realization of national and international R&D projects
- Publication activity and lectures at expert symposia and conferences

YOUR PROFILE
- Technical graduate with diploma or master’s degree (technical university, university of applied sciences), preferably in the field of informatics with expertise in Data Science and AI. A PhD degree is desirable, but not mandatory
- Many years of relevant professional experience within and/or outside the higher education sector
- Teaching experience, ideally in the higher education sector, excellent didactic and rhetorical skills
- Conceptual and analytical thinking together with an autonomous and goal-oriented style of working
- Sense of responsibility, performance and practical orientation, entrepreneurial thinking and acting
- Willingness to travel, very good knowledge of the English language, both oral and written
- Knowledge of German language at least B2

WE OFFER YOU
- A monthly gross-salary starting from € 4.000,-, depending on your qualifications and experience
- A modern working environment in a parkland site near the city center

Flexible working times  Home-Office  Food allowance  Parking  Public transport ticket
Continuing education  Company health management  Discounts  Compatibility of job and family

We look forward to your application by 12.06.2024: jobs@campus02.at (HRM, Ms Dagmar Baumgartner)